

Holistic Information Security
Understanding the Threat, UK/EU Law and Practical Steps for Risk Reduction

Speaker Biography's

Paul Salzedo

Paul is FaberBrent's CEO and lead lecturer. He has more than 15 years experience in the security industry including 5 years in the role of National Training Coordinator for a UK security organisation. This gives him a unique insight of the challenges and requirements of providing security training to non-security personnel.

He has instructed on various security disciplines to over 10,000 students and has authored numerous security training courses. Paul has studied both electronic and audio engineering, is a CISSP (Certified Information System Security Professional) and an SIA licence holder.

Paul is a recognised expert in TSCM (Technical Security Counter Measures) and is a firm believer in real-world security measures. Paul's expertise is in providing practical security advice across complex systems and user requirements.

Maury Shenk

Maury has more than 15 years experience as a lawyer focusing on technology matters, including information security, data protection, lawful access to communications, electronic surveillance, encryption and related matters.

He has significant experience teaching on these topics, as a frequent speaker at legal conferences in the UK, Europe and elsewhere, and as former head of the European legal programme of the SANS Institute (the world's leading organisation for information security training and certification).

Maury is currently European TMT Advisor at global law firm Steptoe & Johnson (where he was formerly London managing partner), and also holds directorships and/or business advisory roles with a portfolio of small technology companies.